

United States District Court
Northern District of California

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

ZACHARY NIGHTINGALE, et al.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

U.S. CITIZENSHIP AND IMMIGRATION
SERVICES, et al.,

Defendants.

Case No. 19-cv-03512-WHO

ORDER GRANTING SUMMARY JUDGMENT IN FAVOR OF
PLAINTIFFS FOR DECLARATORY
AND INJUNCTIVE RELIEF;
GRANTING MOTIONS TO SEAL

Re: Dkt. Nos. 68, 70, 75, 78

Plaintiffs and class members are noncitizens and attorneys who challenge the systemic failure of the U.S. Department of Homeland Security (“DHS”) and its component agencies, U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (“USCIS”) and U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (“ICE”) (collectively “defendants”), to respond to their requests for Alien Registration Files (“A-Files”) within the statutory deadlines mandated by the Freedom of Information Act (“FOIA”). Defendants admit that they have not complied with those FOIA deadlines for at least the past eight years.

This noncompliance has real life consequences. Defendants serve as custodians of A-Files, prosecutors in removal proceedings, and adjudicators of applications for immigration benefits. Their delay in processing A-File FOIA requests deprives plaintiffs of the information they need to defend against removal, to obtain benefits, and to gain citizenship. It undermines the fairness of immigration proceedings, particularly for the vast number of noncitizens who navigate our immigration system without assistance of counsel.

Despite defendants’ recent efforts to reduce the backlog of A-File FOIA requests, they have not come close to resolving this systemic problem. A comprehensive remedy is needed and is long overdue.

1 In light of the undisputed history of defendants' failure to meet FOIA statutory deadlines, I
 2 GRANT summary judgment in favor of plaintiffs. I GRANT declaratory relief that defendants
 3 have violated the FOIA by failing to make timely determinations on plaintiffs' A-File FOIA
 4 requests within the mandated statutory time frames and that defendants have engaged in a pattern
 5 or practice of violating FOIA's statutory deadlines when responding to requests for A-Files. I
 6 ORDER injunctive relief in the following form: (i) defendants are permanently enjoined from 7 further failing to adhere to FOIA statutory deadlines for adjudicating A-File FOIA requests; (ii)
 8 within sixty (60) days of this order, defendants must make determinations on all A-File FOIA
 9 requests in USCIS's and ICE's backlogs; (iii) defendants must provide the court and class counsel
 10 with quarterly compliance reports, with the first report due within ninety (90) days of this order.

11 A Case Management Conference is set for April 6, 2021 at 2:00 p.m. The parties shall file
 12 a joint case management statement by March 30, 2021.

13 BACKGROUND

14 On October 15, 2019, I found that class certification was "appropriate in these 15 extraordinary circumstances" because plaintiffs "established that noncitizens nationwide
 16 experience significant delays in obtaining their A-Files and that such delays are harmful to their 17 immigration cases." Nightingale v. U.S. Citizenship & Immigration Servs., 333 F.R.D. 449, 453
 18 (N.D. Cal. 2019). A "single injunction or declaratory judgment would provide relief to each
 19 member of the proposed classes – the timely determination of their time-sensitive A-File FOIA
 20 requests." Id. The following two classes were certified:

21 USCIS Class: All individuals who filed, or will file, A-File FOIA
 22 requests with USCIS which have been pending, or will be pending,
 23 with USCIS for more than 30 business days without a determination.
 24 ICE Referral Class: All individuals who filed, or will file, A-File
 25 FOIA requests with USCIS that USCIS has referred, or will refer, to ICE and which have been pending, or will be pending, for more than 30 business days from the date of the initial filing with USCIS without a determination.

26 Id. at 456.

27 Plaintiffs now move for summary judgment and seek an order (i) declaring this pattern or 28 practice unlawful, (ii) permanently enjoining defendants from violating FOIA, (iii) ordering the

1 elimination of existing backlogs within thirty (30) days, (iv) requiring regular compliance reports
2 to the court and class counsel, and (v) ordering defendants to provide notice and a uniform
3 procedural mechanism that will ensure that class members in removal proceedings can request and 4 receive A-Files in a timely manner. Plaintiffs' Notice of Motion and Motion for Summary
5 Judgment ("MSJ") [Dkt. No. 70].

6 Defendants cross-move for summary judgment on grounds that plaintiffs have failed to 7 establish a pattern or practice claim. Defendants' Notice of Cross-Motion for Summary Judgment
8 and Opposition to Plaintiffs' Motion for Summary Judgment ("Cross MSJ") [Dkt. No. 75]. Even 9 if a pattern or practice is established, they ask that I decline to issue injunctive relief in light of 10 their recent efforts to comply with FOIA's deadlines and reduce the backlog. I heard oral 11 argument on December 9, 2020.

12 LEGAL STANDARD

13 Summary judgment on a claim or defense is appropriate "if the movant shows that there is 14 no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of 15 law." Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a). In order to prevail, a party moving for summary judgment must show 16 the absence of a genuine issue of material fact with respect to an essential element of the non-17 moving party's claim, or to a defense on which the non-moving party will bear the burden of 18 persuasion at trial. See Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986). Once the movant has 19 made this showing, the burden then shifts to the party opposing summary judgment to identify 20 "specific facts showing there is a genuine issue for trial." Id. The party opposing summary
21 judgment must present affirmative evidence from which a jury could return a verdict in that 22 party's favor. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, 477 U.S. 242, 257 (1986).

23 On summary judgment, the court draws all reasonable factual inferences in favor of the 24 non-movant. Id. at 255. In deciding the motion, "[c]redibility determinations, the weighing of the 25 evidence, and the drawing of legitimate inferences from the facts are jury functions, not those of a
26 judge." Id. However, conclusory and speculative testimony does not raise genuine issues of fact
27 and is insufficient to defeat summary judgment. See Thornhill Publ'g Co., Inc. v. GTE Corp., 594
28 F.2d 730, 738 (9th Cir. 1979).

1 DISCUSSION

2 I. PATTERN OR PRACTICE CLAIMS

3 Before discussing the merits of plaintiffs' pattern or practice claims, I start with an 4 overview of defendants' obligations under FOIA and why those obligations are particularly 5 important in this case.

6 A. FOIA Statutory Deadlines

7 The FOIA statute requires that an agency make a determination on a FOIA request within 8 20 business days. 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(6)(A)(i). An agency may extend its response time in case of 9 "unusual circumstances," by no more than 10 business days provided it sends the requestor
10 "written notice." 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(6)(B)(i).

11 Congress recognized the importance of timely conveying the information sought through 12 FOIA. When it initially enacted a 10-day limit for responding to FOIA requests, it noted that 13 "information is often useful only if it is timely" and that the purpose of the time limit was to 14 require agencies "to respond to inquiries . . . within specific time limits." H. Rep. No. 93-876, at 15 126 (1974), as reprinted in 1974 U.S.C.C.A.N. 6267, 6271. When Congress extended the deadline
16 to 20 days, it again recognized "[l]ong delays in access can mean no access at all," and urged
17 agencies to "respond to requests in a timely manner." H. Rep. No. 104-795, at 16-23, as reprinted
18 in 1996 U.S.C.C.A.N. 3459, 3466. Accordingly, "[i]n adopting the FOIA, Congress was 19 specifically concerned that agencies would delay in responding to requests, and as a result 'an 20 agency's failure to comply with the FOIA's time limits is, by itself, a violation of the FOIA.'" Our Children's Earth Found. v. Nat'l Marine Fisheries Serv., No. 14-1130 SC, 2015 WL 21 4452136, at *7 (N.D. Cal. Jul. 20, 2015) (hereinafter "OCE F") (quoting Gilmore v. U.S. Dep't of 22 Energy, 33 F. Supp. 2d 1184, 1187 (N.D. Cal. 1998)); see also Long v. IRS, 693 F.2d 907, 910
23 (9th Cir. 1982) (concluding that an agency's unreasonable delay in disclosing non-exempt
24 documents violates the FOIA and "courts have a duty to prevent these abuses").

25
26 Although courts recognize that resources for FOIA compliance may be "heavily taxed by 27 the quantity and depth of FOIA requests (especially in light of budget constraints that limit 28 personnel and resources assigned to an agency), that does not grant the agency carte blanche to

1 repeatedly violate congressionally mandated deadlines.” OCE I, 2015 WL 4452136, at *8.
 2 Rather, it is incumbent on agencies to “inform Congress of the additional resources needed to fully
 3 comply with the FOIA.” Gilmore, 33 F. Supp. 2d at 1188 (quoting H. Rep. No. 104-795, as 4 reprinted in 1996 U.S.C.C.A.N. 3448, 3472).

5 B. Importance of Timely Obtaining A-Files

6 Compliance with FOIA deadlines is especially important in the immigration context: It
 7 provides an essential safeguard to plaintiffs who require a copy of their A-Files to pursue
 8 immigration benefits or defend themselves or their clients against removal.¹ See generally Ex. A1,
 9 Declaration of Zachary Nightingale (“Nightingale Decl.”); Ex. A2, Declaration of Matthew 10 Hoppock (“Hoppock Decl.”); Ex. A3, Declaration of Laura St. John (“St. John Decl.”); Ex. A4,
 11 Declaration of Andrea Sáenz (“Sáenz Decl.”); Ex. A5, Declaration of Sabrina Damast (“Damast
 12 Decl.”); Ex. A6, Declaration of Hans Meyer (“Meyer Decl.”). A-Files include critical information
 13 about past interactions between the individual and DHS; records of prior entries, admissions, or 14 removal orders; records of past statements; and records of past applications filed by the noncitizen
 15 or on the noncitizen’s behalf. See Hoppock Decl. ¶¶ 9–12, 15–18; Damast Decl. ¶¶ 11–13, 15;
 16 Sáenz Decl. ¶¶ 8–9; St. John Decl. ¶ 6; Meyer Decl. ¶ 7; Nightingale Decl. ¶ 2. Where an 17 individual is a victim of an immigration scam, mentally incompetent, or suffering from extreme 18 trauma, the A-File may be the only means available to discern their immigration history. See 19 Hoppock Decl. ¶ 13; St. John Decl. ¶¶ 5–6, 9; Sáenz Decl. ¶12.

20 Timely access to A-Files is vital for noncitizens in removal proceedings. A-File records 21 inform whether detained individuals—most of whom are unrepresented—can contest charges of 22 alienage or removability, are eligible for release on bond, and/or are eligible for relief from 23 removal. See Nightingale Decl. ¶¶ 2, 4, 16; Hoppock Decl. ¶¶ 9–12, 15; St. John Decl. ¶ 6; Sáenz
 24 Decl. ¶ 8; Damast Decl. ¶¶ 4, 5, 12; Meyer Decl. ¶¶ 6, 9. Without access to the information in A-
 25 Files, attorneys and pro se individuals are at a distinct disadvantage because the ICE prosecutor

26 _____
 27 ¹ “An A-File, or Alien File, is the official Government record that contains information regarding 28 noncitizens as they pass through the U.S. immigration and inspection process.” Ex. B,
 Compliance Review of U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services, U.S. Department of Homeland Security Freedom of Information Act Program, at Bates 81744.

1 typically has access to and uses this information in prosecuting the case. See Hoppock Decl. ¶14;
2 Sáenz Decl. ¶¶ 9, 16; Nightingale Decl. ¶ 4.

3 Consequently, attorneys either must seek continuances to await the results of the FOIA
4 request or risk going to trial without the A-File. See Nightingale Decl. ¶ 6 (noting that ICE
5 prosecutors oppose motions to continue to await response to A-File FOIA requests). For detained
6 individuals, continuances result in longer detention, which, for some, is intolerable and leads them
7 to abandon meritorious claims in order to end detention. See St. John Decl. ¶ ¶10–12; Sáenz Decl.
8 ¶ 13; Nightingale Decl. ¶ 16; Hoppock Decl. ¶ 26; Meyer Decl. ¶ 7. If the immigration judge
9 (“IJ”) denies the continuance, or the case moves forward without the A-File, attorneys and their 10 clients must examine documents from the A-File for the first time at trial when the ICE prosecutor
11 submits them. See Hoppock Decl. ¶ 14; Damast Decl. ¶ 13.

12 Adherence to FOIA’s timeframes is critical because there is no adequate substitute for the 13 information contained in an A-File and FOIA is the primary, if not the only, mechanism for 14 accessing A-Files.² Failure to timely respond to A-File FOIA requests creates an information
15 asymmetry that hinders plaintiffs in successfully applying for immigration benefits, challenging 16 removal orders, or seeking release from detention.

18 ² Defendants claim that noncitizens may access A-Files through Touhy regulations, criminal 19 proceedings, and pursuant to the Ninth Circuit’s holding in Dent v. Holder, 627 F.3d 365 (9th Cir.
20 2010). But, as plaintiffs point out, Touhy motions are inapplicable to individuals in removal
21 proceedings. See United States ex rel. Touhy v. Ragen, 340 U.S. 462 (1951); 6 C.F.R. §§ 5.41–
5.45. Defendants do not provide any evidence that DHS honors Touhy motions for any part of an
A-File, much less the entire A-File.

22 For the subset of noncitizens subject to criminal proceedings, as defendants concede, any 23 disclosure of records pursuant to Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963), “may [or may not] include all or part of an A-File.” Cross MSJ 4.

24 A request for an A-File under Dent is equally unreliable. Defendants contend that “if requested by 25 a respondent in an immigration proceeding (such as a removal proceeding) within the jurisdiction of the Ninth Circuit, government attorneys may provide A-File materials where appropriate[.]” 26 Cross MSJ 4 (emphasis added). Dent does not cover the class members in this case who are outside of this Circuit. Even within this Circuit, plaintiffs testify that Dent motions are met with 27 obstruction from DHS prosecutors, who tell attorneys and noncitizens that they must file a FOIA request. See, e.g., Nightingale Decl. ¶ 5 (stating that Dent requests are “virtually always ineffective” because “OCC and DHS have not recognized an obligation under Dent to provide any 28 evidence at all, let alone the entire A-File”); Hoppock Decl. ¶ 20–21; John Decl. ¶ 14; Sáenz Decl.
¶ 7; Damast Decl. ¶ 6.

1 At least three prior lawsuits have raised similar nationwide pattern or practice claims in the 2 immigration context. All of them either settled or were dismissed on standing grounds. See
3 Mayock v. I.N.S., 714 F. Supp. 1558 (N.D. Cal. 1989), rev'd sub nom. Mayock v. Nelson, 938 F.2d
4 1006 (9th Cir. 1991) (pattern or practice claim against then-named Immigration and Naturalization
5 Service (“INS”) brought by immigration attorney James R. Mayock; the parties settled after 6 remand from the Ninth Circuit)³; Hajro v. U.S. Citizenship & Immigration Servs., 832 F. Supp. 2d
7 1095 (N.D. Cal. 2011), rev'd in part, vacated in part, 811 F.3d 1086 (9th Cir. 2016) (pattern or 8 practice claim against USCIS brought by noncitizen Misrad Hajro and Mayock, the same attorney
9 who filed the earlier lawsuit; Ninth Circuit reversed for more fact-finding on the issue of 10 standing); Hajro v. United States Citizenship & Immigration Servs., 743 F. App'x 148, 149 (9th
11 Cir. 2018) (affirming district court order finding Mayock lacked standing to pursue the pattern or 12 practice claim); Brown v. U.S. Customs & Border Prot., 132 F. Supp. 3d 1170, 1171 (N.D. Cal.
13 2015) (denying motion to dismiss pattern or practice claim against CBP brought by several 14 immigration attorneys and noncitizens; the parties settled before the court adjudicated the motion
15 for class certification). These cases have not led to compliance, or anything close to it, with 16 FOIA’s statutory deadlines.

17 C. Plaintiffs Have Established a Pattern or Practice of FOIA Violations

18 With that context in mind, I turn to plaintiffs’ claim that defendants have a pattern or 19 practice of failing to meet FOIA’s statutory deadlines. The parties disagree on what plaintiffs 20 must show to establish their pattern or practice claims.

21 Defendants primarily cite D.C. Circuit law to argue that plaintiffs must clear an 22 “extraordinarily high bar to succeed on a pattern or practice claim under FOIA” because they are 23 required to show repeated delays that are “unexplained” or “unjustified,” and the repeated delays
24 here do not meet that threshold because defendants face an increasing FOIA workload. Cross
25

26 ³ After remand from the Ninth Circuit, the parties entered into a settlement agreement in 1992, “in 27 which INS agreed to implement expedited processing of a FOIA request where the requester 28 demonstrates that an individual’s life or personal safety would be jeopardized or that substantial due process rights of the requester would be impaired by the failure to process a request immediately.” Hajro, 811 F.3d at 1093.

1 MSJ 9–12. This articulation of the standard narrows what courts within this Circuit have found
2 sufficient to establish a FOIA pattern or practice claim.

3 The Hon. Paul S. Grewal’s opinion in Hajro, the 2008 case alleging USCIS’s pattern or 4 practice of FOIA violations, is instructive. He addressed three issues: (i) whether immigration
5 attorney Mayock had standing to assert a pattern or practice claim against USCIS; (ii) whether 6 noncitizen Hajro and Mayock established a pattern or practice of USCIS FOIA violations; and (iii)
7 whether injunctive relief was warranted to remedy a pattern or practice of FOIA violations.
8 Hajro, 832 F. Supp. 2d at 1105–09. In relevant part, he found that Hajro and Mayock established
9 their pattern or practice claim because not only was Hajro’s November 2007 request left 10 unanswered past the statutory deadline, “Mayock’s declaration [referred] to other requests for 11 which the government has not produced records in a timely manner, as well as the declarations
12 and exemplars of 26 other attorneys.” Id. at 1107. These declarations “testif[ied] to USCIS’s
13 persistent failures with respect to both requirements,” i.e., “the failure to provide a response within 14 twenty days and the failure to provide written notice setting forth the ‘unusual circumstances’ that 15 would qualify USCIS for a ten-day extension of time.” Id.

16 Judge Grewal rejected USCIS’s argument that “an agency’s delay in responding to a FOIA
17 request, standing alone, is not evidence of bad faith,” finding the argument “confuse[d] whether 18 the evidence supports a finding of a pattern or practice of FOIA violations with the basis for 19 injunctive relief.” Id. at 1107. He also rejected USCIS’s argument that “there is no evidence of a 20 pattern of unreasonable delay in USCIS’s FOIA responses to Hajro,” in light of clear evidence that 21 the three-month delay in Hajro’s request exceeded the time statutorily allowed for processing
22 FOIA requests. Id. Mayock similarly testified that USCIS never responded within the twenty-day
23 limit or with an explanation requiring more time for the FOIA requests he has made on behalf of 24 his clients. Id.

25 Judge Grewal concluded:

26 In sum, the experiences of Plaintiffs establish a pattern or practice of 27 violations. And twenty-six other attorneys have testified to 28 encountering the same delays in the same context as Hajro and Mayock. Defendants have not offered evidence to the contrary, pointed out inconsistencies in the record that would suggest a genuine

1 issue of fact for trial, or come forward with even assertions that 2 USCIS is in compliance with the timing requirements of FOIA. Thus Defendants have not met their burden under Rule 56 and summary judgment on this issue in favor of plaintiffs is warranted.

3 Id. at 1108. He ultimately found that injunctive relief was warranted in order to remedy the 4 pattern or practice of FOIA violations. Id.

5 The Ninth Circuit reversed and remanded on a separate issue. It found that Hajro’s pattern
 6 or practice claim was moot once he became a citizen because “the probability that USCIS’s delays
 7 ‘will impair [Hajro’s] lawful access to information in the future’ is now remote.” Hajro v. U.S.
 8 Citizenship & Immigration Servs., 811 F.3d 1086, 1102 (9th Cir. 2016) (quoting Payne Enters., 9 Inc. v. U.S., 837 F.2d 486, 491 (D.C. Cir. 1988)). It “clarif[ied] the standing requirements to 10 assert a FOIA pattern or practice claim,” and remanded the case for determination of “whether 11 Mayock has standing to bring a pattern or practice claim under this standard.” Id. at 1092–93.
 12 The Ninth Circuit’s decision only addressed the standing requirement for raising a pattern or 13 practice claim, not the standard to establish the actual claim. Judge Grewal’s opinion accurately
 14 describes the burden plaintiffs must meet in order to establish their pattern or practice claim.⁴

15 Another FOIA case from this District, Our Children’s Earth Found. v. Nat’l Marine
 16 Fisheries Serv., No. 14-1130 SC, 2015 WL 6331268 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 21, 2015) (hereinafter “OCE
 17 IP”), further confirms that a FOIA pattern or practice claim can be established through evidence of 18 chronic delay and backlogs. The evidence in that case “show[ed] an unmistakable history that the 19 Fisheries Service fail[ed] to meet its statutory deadlines under FOIA and cause[d] Plaintiffs (and 20 likely others similarly situated) to suffer unpredictable, unreasonable delays.” Id. at *8. In 21 particular, the court found that “[t]he fact that there was in the first place a backlog of over 100
 22 cases to so dramatically reduce is itself a red flag indicating the potential for FOIA compliance
 23 issues,” and “[t]his potential [was] confirmed by evidence Plaintiffs provide[d] of a pattern-and-
 24 practice of FOIA violations through affidavits, briefs, FOIA response letters, and inconsistencies
 25 within the NMFS’s own documentation.” Id. “Exhibits submitted by Plaintiffs show[ed] a history

26 _____
 27 ⁴ The Ninth Circuit subsequently affirmed Judge Grewal’s finding that Mayock lacked standing to 28 bring the claim, noting that because Hajro and Mayock did not bring their pattern or practice claim as a class action, they could not amend their complaint once their claims became moot. Hajro, 743 F. App’x at 150.

1 of late responses, ranging but not limited to 4 days, 18 days, 51 days, 9 months, 10 months, and 2 ongoing.” Id.

3 Defendants in OCE II did not dispute “[t]he fact that these response were tardy”; instead,
4 they claimed that the statutory deadlines are not absolute.” Id. The court dismissed that argument
5 because “laxity in the rules cannot justify the sheer volume of the violation history evidenced just 6 between Plaintiffs and the Fisheries Service.” Id. “[T]he evidence [was] clear as to whether a 7 pattern-and-practice existed in the past,” and plaintiffs provided a “reasonable basis to believe that 8 these infractions will be ongoing.” Id.

9 Similarly, no genuine issue of material fact exists here regarding defendants’
10 “unmistakable history” of failing to make timely determinations on A-File FOIA requests. USCIS
11 has reported a backlog for each of the last eight years, a backlog that is much larger than the one at 12 issue in OCE II. The backlog has increased in recent years—growing from 16,247 in FY 2015 to 13 25,446 in August 2020. See Ex. H, USCIS 30(b)(6) Deposition of Tammy Meckley, Associate 14 Director of the Immigration Records and Identity Services Directorate (“Meckley Dep.”) at 49:16.
15 It increased by more than 6,000 cases between June and August 2020. See Ex. L, Email from 16 Elliot B. Viker to Tammy Meckley et al. dated May 29, 2020; Ex. M, Email from Cynthia M.
17 Cornell to Cynthia L. Holt et al. dated August 28, 2020. Ninety-nine percent of the total FOIA
18 requests that USCIS receives are A-File FOIA requests that “account for the largest portion of 19 DHS’ FOIA backlog.” Meckley Dep. at 51:12-16; Ex. N, Defendants’ Response to Plaintiffs’
20 First Set of Requests for Admission at 7. Plaintiffs submit the following table to summarize 21 USCIS’s historical backlog:

DATE	RECEIVED	BACKLOG	SOURCE ⁵
FY 2012	117,787	10,727	Ex. I1, FY2012 DHS FOIA Report at 19–20
FY 2013	132,797	3,394	Ex. I2, FY2013 DHS FOIA Report at 18

26 ⁵ References to the “DHS FOIA Report” are to the Freedom of Information Report to the Attorney
27 General of the United States and the Director of the Office of Government Information Services,
28 which are available by fiscal year at <https://www.dhs.gov/foia-annual-reports>. Plaintiffs submit the relevant portions of those reports as Exhibit I.

1	FY 2014	143,794	5,026	Ex. I3, FY2014 DHS FOIA Report at 19
2	FY 2015	162,986	16,247	Ex. I4, FY2015 DHS FOIA Report at 20
3	FY 2016	166,732	35,763	Ex. I5, FY2016 DHS FOIA Report at 19–20
4	FY 2017	190,941	37,887	Ex. I6, FY2017 DHS FOIA Report at 19
5	FY 2018	191,804	41,329	Ex. I7, FY2018 DHS FOIA Report at 21
6	June 19, 2019 – Nightingale v. USCIS filed
7	September 2019 – USCIS invokes “unusual circumstances” in all Track 2 and 3 A-File FOIA Requests ⁶
8	FY 2019	200,174	14,773	Ex. I8, FY2019 DHS FOIA Report at 29
9	Jun. 30, 2020		21,160	Ex. K, Defendants’ Response to Plaintiffs’ Second Set of Interrogatories at 3 10
11	Aug. 31, 2020		25,446	Meckley Dep. at 49:16

12 The average processing time for USCIS continues to exceed well beyond the statutory 13 deadline of 20-days, or-30-days in “unusual circumstances.” In June 2019, when this lawsuit was 14 filed, the average processing time for Track 2 (the complex track where USCIS processes most A-15 File requests) was between 55 and 90 days. The average as of September 2020 was 71 days.
16 Meckley Dep. at 152:8–15. Named plaintiffs and numerous other immigration attorneys also 17 testified that USCIS has failed to respond to their A-File FOIA requests within the statutory 18 timeframe. See Nightingale Decl. ¶¶ 11, 14 (reporting over seven month delays); Hoppock Decl. ¶
19 22 (“[M]any months or years.”); St. John Decl. ¶ 8–9 (three to six months for “basic” requests, and 20 often over a year); Sáenz Decl. ¶ 11 (“[M]onths or even years.”); Damast Decl. ¶ 9 (six months to 21 over a year); Meyer Decl. ¶ 5 (reporting “six months to over a year” for USCIS files and “twelve 22 to twenty-four months” for ICE documents).

23
24
25
26
27
28
⁶ See Ex. I8, FY2019 DHS FOIA Report at 27 (“In September 2019 USCIS began claiming unusual circumstances for Track 2 and Track 3 requests. This change removed 2,338 cases from the backlog at the end of FY2019.”). At the hearing, the parties disputed whether it was appropriate for USCIS to categorically invoke “unusual circumstances” under 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(6)(B)(i) in this way. I need not decide that issue here. I note, however, that the certified USCIS Class and ICE Referral Class account for this additional time as it covers individuals who have had their A-File FOIA requests pending with defendants “for more than 30 business days without a determination.”

ICE has also reported a backlog for each year since 2012 that has steadily increased since 2015. As of August 11, 2020, ICE's backlog recorded at 56,661 requests. Ex. G, ICE 30(b)(6) Deposition of Catrina Pavlik Keenan ("Keenan Dep.") at 179:15–19. The "vast majority" of ICE's backlog consists of A-File FOIA requests; all of ICE's backlogged A-File FOIA requests originated with USCIS as the custodian of A-Files. Id. at 72:18–22, 78:13–22. Despite purported enhanced efforts in FY 2020, discussed further below, ICE projects that its backlog will not be eliminated until September 2021. Ex. 4, Declaration of Fernando Pineiro, ICE Acting FOIA Officer ("Pineiro Decl.") ¶ 5. Plaintiffs submit the following table to summarize ICE's historical backlog:

DATE	RECEIVED	BACKLOG	SOURCE ⁷
FY 2012	24,073	2,443	Ex. I1, FY2012 DHS FOIA Report at 19
FY 2013	34,161	4,714	Ex. I2, FY2013 DHS FOIA Report at 18
FY 2014	85,081	56,863	Ex. I3, FY2014 DHS FOIA Report at 19
FY 2015	44,748	555	Ex. I4, FY2015 DHS FOIA Report at 20
FY 2016	63,385	471	Ex. I5, FY2016 DHS FOIA Report at 19
FY 2017	47,893	391	Ex. I6, FY2017 DHS FOIA Report at 19
FY 2018	70,267	1,332 ⁸	Ex. I7, FY2018 DHS FOIA Report at 21
June 19, 2019 – Nightingale v. USCIS filed
FY 2019	64,231	1,493 ⁹	Ex. I8, FY2019 DHS FOIA Report at 14
Jun. 30, 2020		62,471	Ex. K, Defendants' Response to Plaintiffs' Second Set of Interrogatories at 4

⁷ See supra note 5.

⁸ Plaintiffs contend that DHS's annual report did not account for 17,043 referrals from USCIS and that the actual backlog was 18,375. See Ex. I7, FY2018 DHS FOIA Report at 6; Ex. K, Defendants' Response to Plaintiffs' Second Set of Interrogatories at 2–3.

⁹ Plaintiffs contend that DHS's annual report did not account for 59,123 referrals from USCIS and that the actual backlog was 60,616. See Ex. I8, FY2019 DHS FOIA Report at 14; Ex. K, Defendants' Response to Plaintiffs' Second Set of Interrogatories at 3.

Aug. 31, 2020	56,661	Keenan Dep. at 179:15–19
---------------	--------	--------------------------

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19 20
21
22

DHS ultimately shares responsibility with its component agencies for the chronic failure to comply with the FOIA statute. It admits that “FOIA backlogs have continued to be a systemic problem at DHS” and that “[r]equests for A-file material comprise the vast majority of DHS’s FOIA workload.” Ex. E, DHS FOIA Backlog Reduction Plan 2020-2023 at Bates 88275–76; see also Ex. Z, Talking Points on FOIA Operations at DHS (Jun. 5, 2019), at Bates 103827 (acknowledging “FOIA backlogs are a systemic issue at DHS”).¹⁰

Defendants do not rebut the evidence discussed above. They do not dispute that there has been a systemic failure across the agencies to make timely determinations on A-File FOIA requests and that noncitizens experience significant delays in obtaining their A-Files nationwide. See Ex. D, DHS Chief Privacy Officer Privacy Office Overview at Bates 85216-REP (“There are consistent and systematic delays with FOIA processing, which adversely impact [noncitizens], delays immigration proceedings, and potentially extends detention.”); Ex. E, DHS FOIA Backlog Reduction Plan 2020-2023 at Bates 88274–75 (“Requestors need [A-File] records for personally critical and often time-sensitive reasons—they might be applying for benefits, facing deportations, or challenging their employment termination.”).

Instead, defendants contend that the backlogs fail to reflect the incredible volume of incoming A-File requests received since 2012 and their good faith efforts to address the problem. But as Judge Grewal found in Hajro, this argument appears to “confuse whether the evidence supports a finding of a pattern or practice of FOIA violations with the basis for injunctive relief,” a separate inquiry that I will address below. Hajro, 832 F. Supp. 2d at 1107.

23
24
25
26
27
28

¹⁰ Defendants argue that plaintiffs cannot show that DHS has been engaging in its own independent pattern or practice of FOIA violations because, by design, DHS components have their own FOIA offices and DHS headquarters generally is not involved in the direct processing of FOIA requests received by its components. Cross MSJ 20; see Ex. 7, Declaration of James V.L.M. Holzer, DHS Deputy Chief FOIA Officer (“Holzer Decl.”) ¶¶ 4–5. Nonsense. DHS is responsible for providing oversight of its components’ FOIA programs. Id. ¶ 7. DHS also acknowledges that “[d]ecentralization of the FOIA program at the Department causes problems in program coordination and workforce management making it difficult for the DHS FOIA enterprise to share manpower coordinate surge efforts and plan for future challenges.” Ex. E, DHS FOIA Backlog Reduction Plan 2020-2023 at Bates 88281; see also Ex. AA, DHS FOIA Presentation (Jun. 5, 2019), at Bates 103815, 103817 (listing “decentralization” as one of the “FOIA Primary Challenges”).

1 Defendants cite Mayock v. Nelson, 938 F.2d 1006 (9th Cir. 1991), in support of their 2 contention that increased workloads and efforts to reduce backlogs are part of the pattern or 3 practice inquiry here. Cross MSJ 11. In that case, immigration attorney Mayock, the same
4 plaintiff who later filed the Hajro lawsuit in 2008, sued the San Francisco INS office for failing to 5 timely process A-File FOIA requests. The INS argued that “it can be relieved of the strict 6 deadlines by [section] 552(a)(6)(C).” Mayock v. I.N.S., 714 F. Supp. 1558, 1563 (N.D. Cal. 1989);
7 see 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(6)(C)(i) (“If the Government can show exceptional circumstances exist and 8 that the agency is exercising due diligence in responding to the request, the court may retain 9 jurisdiction and allow the agency additional time to complete its review of the records.”)
10 (emphasis added).

11 The court found it “doubtful whether [section] 552(a)(6)(C) was really intended by 12 Congress to answer the problems presented by this case” because “[t]hat section appears to 13 contemplate separate suits in district court to enforce specific FOIA requests” and “does not 14 expressly address the ‘pattern and practice’ problem.” 714 F. Supp at 1565. Assuming the section 15 applied, the court “ha[d] difficulty finding that a normal, predictable workload is an ‘exceptional
16 circumstance,’ especially where the INS has made no showing that it has unsuccessfully sought
17 more FOIA resources from Congress or attempted to redirect its existing resources.” Id. at 1565–
18 66 (emphasis added). It concluded that “section 552(a)(6)(C) is not a defense available to the INS
19 in this case,” because “[w]hile that section might be invoked as a reason for requesting additional 20 time for individual requests that are large or complicated, it does not constitute a defense to delays
21 that result from the ordinary course of business in processing FOIA requests.” Id. at 1566.

22 The Ninth Circuit reversed, finding that it was “not clear that the district court considered
23 the government’s evidence in its entirety.” 938 F.2d at 1008. In particular, it found that the 24 district court failed to consider one of the government’s declarations that “created a dispute over 25 material facts, including whether the government had attempted to get increased funding in order
26 to reduce its backlog.” Id. Because the Ninth Circuit in Mayock remanded to the district court for 27 more fact-finding on agency workload, defendants argue that I should consider further fact finding 28 here as well.

1 I will assume that the “exceptional circumstances” and “due diligence” defenses are
 2 applicable to the pattern or practice claims in this case.¹¹ But the voluminous record here does not
 3 support defendants’ position.

4 A few years after Mayock, Congress tightened the definition of “exceptional
 5 circumstances” in the 1996 amendments to the FOIA statute: “For purposes of this subparagraph,
 6 the term ‘exceptional circumstances’ does not include a delay that results from a predictable
 7 agency workload of requests under this section, unless the agency demonstrates reasonable
 8 progress in reducing its backlog of pending requests.” 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(6)(C)(ii) (emphasis
 9 added). Here, a reasonable fact finder could only conclude that defendants’ increasing workload
 10 was predictable. We are not considering a sudden spike in cases; defendants have had a FOIA 11 backlog every year since at least 2012.

12 Moreover, since 2017 these defendants have employed aggressive immigration
 13 enforcement policies that made an increasing workload predictable and expected. The unfortunate 14 reality is that FOIA is the only realistic mechanism through which noncitizens can obtain A-Files.
 15 Given the critical importance of the information in A-Files to removal defense and legalizing
 16 status, it is not at all surprising that the number of A-File FOIA requests have increased along with 17 this increase in immigration enforcement. See, e.g., Ex. 1, Declaration of Tammy M. Meckley
 18 (“Meckley Decl.”) ¶ 30 (table demonstrating “from FY 2012 to FY 2020, there has been a steady 19 rise in FOIA requests submitted to USCIS”).

20 Nor does the record demonstrate reasonable progress in reducing the backlog of pending
 21 requests. Defendants contend that the FOIA offices within USCIS and ICE have submitted 22 requests to leadership within their respective agencies on an annual basis seeking enhancements to 23

24 ¹¹ Plaintiffs argue that the issues on appeal in Mayock were whether and how the district court was 25 required to consider the “exceptional circumstances” and “due diligence” defenses under to 5
 26 U.S.C. § 552(a)(6)(C) as applied to the plaintiff’s FOIA requests, but that those defenses are not 27 applicable here where a class has been certified. Plaintiffs’ Opposition to Defendants’ Cross-
 28 Motion for Summary Judgment and Reply in Support of Plaintiffs’ Motion for Summary Judgment (“Pls. Oppo.”) [Dkt. No. 79] 5. Defendants respond that there is no reason why absence of class-certification questions in Mayock, which is otherwise on all fours with this case, would allow me to disregard the Ninth Circuit’s analysis. Defendants’ Reply in Support of Cross-Motion for Summary Judgment (“Defs. Reply”) [Dkt. No. 82] 4. The Ninth Circuit’s short opinion in Mayock does not squarely address this question.

1 their FOIA programs, including additional FOIA personnel, investment funds (such as the $10
2 million investment for FIRST), overtime approval, approval to hire contractors, and technological
3 improvements. See Keenan Dep. at 48:10–49:2; Meckley Dep. at 58:21–59:5; Meckley Decl. ¶¶
4 24–25. But when questioned by members of Congress about delayed A-File FOIA processing,
5 neither DHS’s Deputy Chief FOIA Officer nor USCIS’s Senior Executive requested, or even 6 suggested, that the agencies would benefit from additional or specifically-designated funding for 7 FOIA processing. See Ex. Y, Statement of James V.M.L. Holzer, Deputy Chief FOIA Officer
8 before Subcommittee on Oversight, Management, and Accountability (failing to raise the issue at 9 October 17, 2019 congressional hearing).

10 Rather than seek congressional funding, defendants continue to rely on a patchwork of 11 short-term fixes—overtime, staff detailed from other departments, and contract support—none of 12 which has succeeded in the long-term. Holzer Decl. ¶ 8 (“DHS Privacy Office at times assists its 13 components with processing certain types of requests in order to reduce outstanding backlogs.”);
14 Meckley Decl. ¶¶ 71, 77 (“USCIS has [] entered into a number of contracts to retain FOIA
15 processors,” and these contracts “typically contain a base period of one year and several option
16 years”; USCIS has also authorized overtime in an effort to address the backlog,” and “[w]hile
17 overtime is not a panacea solution, if the agency has not authorized overtime, the backlog today
18 would be significantly larger”). Defendants contend that since 2010, USCIS’s FOIA office has 19 grown from 48 government information specialists to 162. Meckley Decl. ¶ 69. But their own
20 expert reports that in FY 2019, “USCIS faced 22.8% of all FOIA requests [government-wide]
21 with only 7.04% of the government’s FOIA staff.” Ex. 6, Expert Declaration of Lindsay Steel
22 (“Steel Decl.”) ¶ 17. One would expect that as an agency that “consistently receives more FOIA
23 requests on an annual basis than any other federal agency,” USCIS would have a proportionately
24 higher number of FOIA staff to meet that demand. Id. ¶ 15.

25 Defendants’ explanation of why USCIS does not routinely request FOIA funding from 26 Congress is unconvincing. They contend that because Congress has designated USCIS as an 27 agency that does not receive congressional appropriations for its FOIA operations, USCIS has to 28 rely on its own generated income. Cross MSJ 18 (citing 8 U.S.C. §§ 1356(m), (n)). 8 U.S.C. §

1 1356(m) applies to “adjudication fees as are designated by the Attorney General in regulations,”
2 whereas the mechanism for FOIA processing and production fees are designated by Congress
3 under 5 U.S.C. § 552(a)(4)(A). Even if 8 U.S.C. § 1356(m) is applicable, nothing in that statute
4 prevents DHS or USCIS from seeking additional or independent funding from Congress to 5 resource their FOIA operations to ensure compliance.¹²

6 The Ninth Circuit has recognized that “Congress wrote a tough statute on agency delay in 7 FOIA compliance, and recently made it tougher,” and “[t]hough FOIA doubtless poses practical
8 difficulties for federal agencies, federal agencies can educate Congress on the practical problems
9 they have, and attempt to persuade Congress to change the law or provide additional funds to 10 achieve compliance.” Fiduccia v. U.S. Dep’t of Justice, 185 F.3d 1035, 1041 (9th Cir. 1999)
11 (emphasis added); see id. at 1041–42 (finding district court erred in finding “exceptional
12 circumstances” where the Federal Bureau of Investigation (“FBI”) had an increasing workload
13 since the early 1980s and claimed an “unexceptional . . . slight upward creep in the caseload”;
14 while the FBI claimed “repeated rejection of its budget requests within the executive branch . . .
15 before the requests even got to Congress,” “[t]he decision of the executive branch not to pass on 16 the bureau’s request to the legislative branch would be consistent with a policy choice by the 17 executive branch to delay FOIA requests rather than ask for additional funds to meet them in a
18 timely way”). There is no evidence in the record that defendants have even attempted, let alone
19 succeeded, in persuading Congress to change the law or provide additional funds to achieve
20 compliance.¹³

21
22 ¹² USCIS also complains that it recently tried to increase its fees through a new regulation that 23 could have added more resources to its FOIA budget, but that effort is currently preliminary
24 enjoined in this District. See Immigrant Legal Res. Ctr. v. Wolf, No. 20-CV-05883-JSW, 2020
25 WL 5798269, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 29, 2020) (granting preliminary injunctive relief to plaintiff
26 organizations that serve low-income applicants for immigration benefits and staying USCIS rule implementing fee changes for immigration benefit requests). This argument is particularly troubling as it insinuates that FOIA processing is entirely dependent on the fees paid by the very people who are harmed by the defendants’ delays.

27 ¹³ At the hearing, defendants stated that due to the COVID-19 pandemic, USCIS saw a 50% drop 28 in incoming immigration -related fees. This budget shortfall prompted it to request $1.2 billion in emergency funds from Congress. There is no indication that any part of this $1.2 billion request is earmarked for FOIA processing, as opposed to general operating expenses.

1 In sum, the evidence is clear that USCIS, ICE and DHS have a pattern of unreasonable
2 delay in responses to A-File FOIA requests. Even if there is no “egregious” policy to violate
3 FOIA’s statutory deadlines, “informal agency conduct resulting in long delays in making
4 requested non-exempt records available may serve as the basis for a policy or practice claim.”
5 Nightingale, 333 F.R.D. at 460 (quoting Judicial Watch, Inc. v. United States Dep’t of Homeland
6 Sec., 895 F.3d 770, 777–78 (D.C. Cir. 2018)). Defendants cannot use a predictably increasing
7 workload to excuse their chronic failure to make timely determinations on A-File FOIA requests.

8 Summary judgment is GRANTED in plaintiffs’ favor because no genuine issue of material
9 fact exists concerning defendants’ pattern or practice of not making timely determinations on A-10 File FOIA requests. I GRANT declaratory relief that (i) defendants have violated the FOIA by 11 failing to make timely determinations on plaintiffs’ A-File FOIA requests within the statutory time
12 frames mandated by FOIA and that (ii) defendants have engaged in a long-standing pattern or 13 practice of violating FOIA’s statutory deadlines when responding to requests for A-Files. See 14 OCE I, 2015 WL 4452136, at *7 (“[E]ntering declaratory judgment that the agency violated the 15 FOIA is appropriate when the agency has a pattern and practice of violating these time limits.”)
16 (citing Payne, 837 F.2d at 494–95).

17 II. INJUNCTIVE RELIEF

18 Injunctive relief is warranted in order to remedy a pattern or practice of FOIA violations by 19 an agency where there is “a probability that alleged illegal conduct will recur in the future.” Long
20 v. IRS, 693 F.2d 907, 909 (9th Cir. 1982). “In determining whether injunctive relief is appropriate
21 to resolve a FOIA dispute, the court’s prime consideration should be the effect on the public of 22 disclosure or nondisclosure.” Id. Where “prolonged delays have repeatedly hindered the timely 23 disclosure of non-exempt documents, the district court should seriously consider the likelihood of 24 recurrence, weighing the good faith of any expressed intent to comply, the effectiveness, if any, of 25 the discontinuance and the character of past violations.” Id.

26 The “prime consideration,” the effect on the public of disclosure or nondisclosure, weighs 27 heavily in favor of plaintiffs as class members who must rely on FOIA in order to obtain records
28 necessary to determine eligibility for immigration benefits, defend against removal, or challenge

1 ongoing detention. Defendants admit that the “current FOIA process raises several concerns,”
2 including delay that “adversely impacts [noncitizens], delays immigration proceedings, and 3 potentially extends detention.” Ex. D, DHS Chief Privacy Officer Privacy Office Overview at 4 Bates 85216-REP.

5 The likelihood of recurrence continues as thousands of class members either still have
6 unanswered A-File FOIA requests in the agencies’ backlog or will file an A-File FOIA request
7 that will likely end up in the backlog. The character of the past violations, discussed above, also 8 weighs in favor of granting injunctive relief.

9 Defendants’ recent efforts, including those taken in response to this lawsuit, do not 10 undermine the need for comprehensive injunctive relief. They have done little to address the 11 systemic problem and do not indicate that defendants have created a path forward towards 12 achieving substantial compliance with FOIA’s statutory deadlines.

13 A. Defendants’ Efforts to Increase Efficiencies

14 Defendants argue that they have shown good faith effort to comply in future. They 15 primarily point to two recent improvements—a software program called “FIRST” and a new inter-
16 agency Memorandum of Agreement executed between USCIS and ICE (the “2020 MOA”).

17 1. FIRST

18 In May 2018, USCIS introduced FIRST, a new system that “allows users to submit and 19 track FOIA requests and receive documents digitally.” Press Release, USCIS Expands FIRST: A 20 Fully Digital FOIA System (Jun. 25, 2019), available at https://www.uscis.gov/news/news-
21 releases/uscis-expands-first-a-fully-digital-foia-system; see Meckley Dep. at 52:9–10, 53:4–9.
22 FIRST focuses on making the FOIA intake and delivery process more efficient, but it fails to 23 address the most time-consuming steps in between – document retrieval. Meckley Dep. 123:5–11, 24 229:16–230:1. The retrieval of documents is time-consuming because A-Files may be stored in 25 multiple locations across the country, including the National Records Center (“NRC”), off-site
26 commercial storage vendors, or “hundreds of different field offices.” Id. at 115:15–116:13, 27 123:5–11.

28 While USCIS “acknowledge[s] that FIRST does not loosen every knot in the FOIA system

1 that causes delayed determination on certain A-Files” and admits that FIRST “does not reduce the
2 time it takes to physically scan paper A-Files,” it points to a separate multi-million dollar project
3 pursued to digitize existing paper A-File records. Cross MSJ 16; Meckley Decl. ¶ 15. A 2016
4 study prompted the agency to conclude that continuing digitization efforts on existing paper
5 records was not “cost efficient.” Meckley Decl. ¶ 15. The agency instead determined that the 6 better option would be to focus on decreasing its reliance on paper records in the future and 7 increasing the use of electronic records from intake of an application through the agency’s
8 determination on that application. Id. As defendants themselves recognize, “[w]hile there have 9 been some efforts to digitize some of the forms in A-Files, the records are largely paper-based.”
10 Ex. E, DHS FOIA Backlog Reduction Plan 2020-2023 at Bates 88275.

11 USCIS contends that the NRC is generally able to scan and ingest paper A-Files within 12 three business days. It does not say if any of the hundreds of field offices where A-Files may be 13 located have a similar capability. Indeed, if files are located at a field office, the files are mailed to 14 the NRC for scanning, another cause for the delay. Meckley Dep. at 226:13–227:10.

15 Defendants submit that FIRST has reduced the average processing time from 1 hour 14
16 minutes to 51 minutes, 30 seconds. Meckley Decl. ¶¶ 50, 52. That is all well and good, but the 17 agency only starts processing the request, i.e., reviewing the record for release or redactions, once
18 all A-File records are scanned into FIRST. Meckley Dep. 113:4–15; see also Ex. E, DHS FOIA
19 Backlog Reduction Plan 2020-2023 at Bates 88275 (“To process a FOIA request for an A-file,
20 USCIS must locate and retrieve the file and digitize its contents using a high speed scanner before
21 the documents can be reviewed.”) (emphasis added). FIRST may introduce some efficiencies in 22 intake and delivery but it does little to address the time-consuming part of the process.¹⁴

23
24 ¹⁴ The parties disagree on whether FIRST is hampered by problems with its implementation and 25 underutilized by requesters. See Hoppock Decl. ¶¶ 27–36 (testifying that FIRST is 26 “inaccessible”); Ex. CC, USCIS FOIA Reduction Project (Apr. 7, 2020) at Bates 702-SUPP
27 (“FIRST slows down overall FOIA process,” and USCIS must “[m]itigate FIRST risks with Dev 28 Team and end user learning curve.”); Ex. EE, USCIS FOIA Reduction Project (Jul. 7, 2020) at Bates 705-SUPP (“FIRST development [was] slowed by remediation actions” and that “[a]dditional testing and code reviews” were required; due to a “FIRST data security incident,” it had to request that 344 individuals return or destroy records); Meckley Decl. ¶ 53–56 (USCIS has around 10 developers working on additional enhancements to FIRST and is continually searching for ways to increase functionality); Compare id. ¶ 57 (incoming requests skyrocketed from around

2. 2020 MOA

Prior to June 2020, USCIS reviewed the documents within an A-File and referred documents with ICE equities to ICE for its own separate review and direct response to the requester. Ex. 4, Declaration of Fernando Pineiro (“Pinerio Decl.”) ¶ 13. On June 1, 2020, USCIS and ICE implemented the MOA to streamline processing ICE records within an A-File. Pursuant to this agreement, USCIS is now responsible for processing ICE records contained within an A-File. See Ex. FF (copy of the 2020 MOA).

The scope of the agreement is as follows:

USCIS will process all ICE records within A-files responsive to FOIA requests. Processing of ICE records shall be completed in accordance with training and guidance provided to USCIS by ICE. Once processing is complete ICE will have 48 hours to review, incorporate any additional withholdings, as appropriate, and approve the release of ICE records. Once approved, or at the expiration of 48 hours, whichever occurs first, ICE records will be electronically delivered to USCIS for final approval, close out and delivery to the FOIA requester. In the event ICE records warrant further review, ICE will notify USCIS within the first 36 hours of receipt and complete its review and provide its response back to USCIS no later than 24 hours beyond the original 48 hours allotted. This will occur on a case by case basis and will not be considered common practice. See attached Appendix B for general outline of USCIS and ICE responsibilities.

Id. at 2.

Given that the vast majority (91%) of ICE’s backlog consists of A-File referrals from USCIS, defendants contend that the 2020 MOA structural shift has enabled ICE to prevent additional increases in its referral backlog. It can instead focus its resources singularly on eliminating its remaining backlog of 27,836 (as of October 15, 2020), which it anticipates doing by the end of the current fiscal year (September 30, 2021). See Pineiro Decl. ¶ 5, 11, 26–27.¹⁵

Despite USCIS and ICE’s assertions that they are “committed to renewing the agreement

4% to 50% since the system launched) with Ex. DD, USCIS FOIA Reduction Project (Feb. 11, 2020) at Bates 703-SUPP (reporting 28% of total receipts in the first quarter of FY 2020 were requests made through FIRST). But even if the system is properly utilized and free of glitches, FIRST only focuses on the intake and delivery process and does little to improve the overall efficiency of responding to FOIA requests.

¹⁵ It is worth noting that this timeframe is at odds with ICE’s claim that, as of October 2020, it is processing an average of 8,000 backlogged FOIA requests per month since, at that rate, the remaining backlog of approximately 28,000 cases would be cleared by the end of January or February 2021. See Pineiro Decl. ¶¶ 5, 27.

1 for years to come,” there is no guarantee that the 2020 MOA will continue beyond FY 2021.
 2 Cross MSJ 18; Pinerio Decl ¶ 23; Meckley Decl ¶ 65. Indeed, the two agencies entered into a
 3 similar cooperative agreement in FY 2012, only to have it end “after a cost analysis conducted by 4 ICE revealed that it was more cost-effective to open the Orlando ICE FOIA office and have
 5 contractors there work through the USCIS A-File referrals than it was to pay USCIS to continue
 6 processing the records via the MOA.” Pinerio Decl. ¶ 19.

7 To the extent that this MOA remains in place, it will—for FOIA requests filed after June 1,
 8 2020—resolve only one aspect of the agencies’ delays in responding to A-File FOIA requests:
 9 ICE’s delays in processing its own records. The MOA does not address USCIS’s years-old
 10 backlog. If anything, the MOA increases USCIS’s workload by requiring it to process ICE
 11 records instead of referring documents to ICE. Furthermore, while the MOA contains time limits
 12 for ICE to reply once its portion of an A-File is processed, it does not similarly bind USCIS.
 13 USCIS still must process both its own documents and ICE documents prior to transferring the file
 14 to ICE for review, but without any deadlines to prevent delay.

15 The 2020 MOA appears to be a step in the right direction, but it is not enough to show that 16 defendants are on a path towards substantial compliance with FOIA statutory deadlines.

17 3. Statistics on Backlog Size and Average Processing Time

18 Despite FIRST, the 2020 MOA, and at least three prior lawsuits raising nationwide pattern
 19 or practice claims in the immigration FOIA context, the size of USCIS and ICE’s backlog has not 20 significantly reduced. Average processing time remains well beyond the statutory deadlines.
 21 Defendants argue that plaintiffs have ignored USCIS’s most significant achievement--USCIS has 22 reduced its processing time for Track 3 priority requests (requests from individuals who are 23 scheduled to appear before an immigration judge) to 33 business days and even further to 26
 24 business days on average as of the date of the defendants’ cross-motion filing. Meckley Decl. ¶¶
 25 21, 42. This statistic is a snapshot in time that reflects the average in the last three months. The 26 average processing time for Track 3 requests for the entire FY 2020 was 54.75 business days. Id.
 27 ¶ 42.

28 The statistic ignores the status of all other A-File requests in Track 1 (simple requests) and

1 Track 2 (complex requests). The record shows that more than a year after this lawsuit was filed,
2 USCIS processing time has not changed significantly for Track 2 cases, the track where USCIS
3 processes most A-File requests. At the time the Complaint was filed, the average processing time
4 was between 55 and 90 days; the average now is 71 days. Meckley Dep. at 152:8–15. An average
5 of 71 days is well above the statutory 20 or 30-day limit.

6 Defendants assert that are while they are still working on improving their Track 1 and 2
7 requests, their designated expert has found that “USCIS generally processes its FOIA requests in a
8 reasonable amount of time under the circumstances and compared to other agencies.” Steel Decl.
9 ¶ 14. Using other agencies’ failures to meet mandatory FOIA deadlines as comparators is, at best,
10 irrelevant. This case concerns USCIS’s violation of the FOIA statute and the impact it is having 11 on class members. The significant negative consequence to plaintiffs in immigration proceedings 12 caused by defendants’ delay is hardly reasonable and it is not excusable, particularly given that 13 Congress has set clear statutory deadlines.

14 While “not all agency delay or other failure to comply with FOIA’s procedural 15 requirements will warrant judicial intervention,” Judicial Watch, 895 F.3d at 782, the Ninth 16 Circuit has recognized that “unreasonable delays in disclosing non-exempt documents violate the 17 intent and purpose of the FOIA, and the courts have a duty to prevent these abuses,” Long, 693
18 F.2d at 910. Given defendants’ long and continuing history of backlogs, their admissions that 19 even on average they continue to fail to comply with the statutory timelines, and the inadequate
20 efforts they have made so far to solve the issue, I find that injunctive relief is appropriate and 21 necessary to remedy this almost decade-long systemic problem.

22 B. Requested Forms of Relief

23 Plaintiffs request relief in the following four forms: (i) permanently enjoin defendants from 24 continuing to violate FOIA, ordering them to adhere to the FOIA timing requirements; (ii) clear
25 the A-File FOIA backlog within thirty (30) days; (iii) provide the court and class counsel with 26 quarterly reports on compliance; and (iv) order DHS and ICE to provide notice to all persons in 27 removal proceedings of their right to request their A-File through FOIA and how to do so.

28 Ordering defendants to adhere to FOIA timing requirements and provide quarterly reports

1 on their compliance are forms of relief that are ordinarily granted by courts where an agency
2 routinely violates a statute or regulation. See, e.g., Hajro, 832 F. Supp. 2d at 1120 (ordering
3 USCIS to comply with FOIA timing provisions); Gonzalez Rosario v. United States Citizenship &
4 Immigration Servs., 365 F. Supp. 3d 1156, 1163 (W.D. Wash. 2018) (enjoining defendants from 5 further failing to adhere to 30-day deadline for adjudicating applications for employment
6 authorization documents and ordering them to submit status reports every six months regarding 7 the rate of their compliance with the 30-day timeline). Defendants’ argument to the contrary is 8 unconvincing.

9 Defendants contend that an order requiring elimination of the backlog within thirty (30)
10 days, is “unworkable” and “likely impossible.” Cross MSJ 23–24. I do not require 100%
11 compliance. I do expect substantial compliance within sixty (60) days in light of the importance
12 of plaintiffs’ receipt of A-files in a timely fashion.

13 Plaintiffs’ final form of requested relief, an order compelling DHS and ICE to provide 14 notice to all persons in removal proceedings of their right to request their A-File through FOIA
15 and how to do so, is different. Plaintiffs assert that neither ICE attorneys nor IJs adequately
16 inform detained or pro se class members in removal proceedings of their right to request their A-
17 Files through FOIA. St. John Decl. ¶ 13; Hoppock Decl. ¶ 25; Nightingale Decl. ¶ 17; Meyer
18 Decl. ¶ 7; Damast Decl. ¶ 14; see also Keenan Dep. at 67:5–68:5 (no knowledge of whether ICE
19 prosecutors or IJs notify individuals). As such, injunctive relief compelling defendants to timely 20 notify individuals in removal proceedings of their right to request A-Files through FOIA would 21 ensure that plaintiffs are “actually inform[ed].” Nozzi v. Hous. Auth., 806 F.3d 1178, 1194 (9th 22 Cir. 2015); see Mullane v. Cent. Hanover Bank & Trust Co., 339 U.S. 306, 314 (1950). In 23 addition, plaintiffs argue that injunctive relief allowing detained or pro se class members in 24 removal proceedings to file an A-File FOIA request via a mechanism other than the internet or 25 U.S. mail, e.g., by providing it to ICE at a removal hearing, would ensure that A-File FOIA
26 requests are filed and timely processed. This is especially true given that ICE prosecutors
27 generally possess the A-File during removal proceedings. Hoppock Decl. ¶ 14; Sáenz Decl. ¶¶ 9, 28 16.

1 Defendants are aware of this problem. DHS has acknowledged that “[p]ro se litigants who
2 lack expertise to file FOIA requests are routinely unable to obtain copies of their A-Files or do not
3 receive it in a timely fashion to adequately represent themselves,” and that “[t]his increases the 4 likelihood that DHS will improperly remove individuals who do not fall under any of the 5 Department’s enforcement priorities.” Ex. D, DHS Chief Privacy Officer Privacy Office
6 Overview at Bates 85216-REP.

7 Plaintiffs cite case law concerning the Due Process Clause, not FOIA, in support of this 8 relief. To be sure, there are a number of ways that the federal government could make 9 immigration proceedings more fair. Plaintiffs’ requested relief would be a small, useful and 10 inexpensive step in that direction. But plaintiffs filed a FOIA case, not a due process challenge.
11 FOIA does not explicitly or implicitly require the additional notice plaintiffs seek.

12 I have broad equitable powers under FOIA, but I cannot see how this particular form of 13 injunctive relief “is necessary to effectuate the congressional purpose behind the [FOIA] statute.”
14 Biodiversity Legal Found. v. Badgley, 309 F.3d 1166, 1177 (9th Cir. 2002); see Long, 693 F.2d at 15 909 (“[T]he Supreme Court held that Congress did not intend to limit the court’s exercise of its 16 inherent equitable powers where consistent with the FOIA.”) (citing Renegotiation Bd. v.
17 Bannercraft Clothing Co., 415 U.S. 1, 20 (1974)) (emphasis added); see, e.g., Animal Legal Def.
18 Fund v. United States Dep’t of Agric., 935 F.3d 858, 873 (9th Cir. 2019) (district court had 19 authority under FOIA to stop the agency from holding back records it has a duty to make 20 available, which includes requiring an agency to post certain categories of documents in online 21 reading rooms pursuant to the FOIA “reading-room” provision). I conclude that I lack 22 jurisdiction to grant plaintiffs’ final form of requested relief.

23 III. MOTIONS TO SEAL

24 Plaintiffs have filed two motions to seal material designated as confidential by defendants.
25 Administrative Motion to Seal [Dkt. No. 68] (portions of Plaintiffs’ Motion for Summary
26 Judgment, Index of Exhibits, and Exhibits D, L, M, O, Q, R, S, V, W, X, AA, BB, FF, and GG); 27 Second Administrative Motion to Seal [Dkt. No. 78] (portions of Plaintiffs’ Opposition to 28 Defendants’ Cross Motion for Summary Judgment and Reply in Support of Plaintiffs’ Motion for

1 Summary Judgment).

2 Defendants only seek to seal certain limited information from ten of the fourteen exhibits,
3 seven of which contain personal identifying information of certain government employees
4 (Exhibits M, Q, R, S, W, FF, and GG) and three of which contain non-final agency deliberations
5 that reveal defendants' conditional decision-making (Exhibits V, X, and BB). Declaration of 6 Cristen C. Handley in Support of Plaintiffs' Administrative Motion to Seal [Dkt. No. 76-1].
7 Because defendants do not seek to seal any information on the remaining four exhibits (Exhibits
8 D, L, O, and AA), Plaintiffs' Motion for Summary Judgment, Index of Exhibits, and Plaintiff's
9 Opposition/Reply, those documents will be filed on the public docket. Id.; Defendants' Response
10 to Plaintiffs' Second Administrative Motion to Seal [Dkt. No. 81].

11 Defendants have shown a compelling reason to keep personal identifying information
12 sealed and their request is narrowly tailored to only sealable material. See Declaration of 13 Fernando Pineiro [Dkt. No. 76-2] ¶ 7 (explaining that disclosure of the private contact information 14 of ICE and USCIS employees would cause unnecessary harm and subject them to harassment).
15 Motion to seal portions of exhibits M, Q, R, S, W, FF, and GG is GRANTED.

16 Defendants also contend that the non-final deliberative material in Exhibits V, X, and BB
17 should be sealed. Exhibits V and X are draft briefing presentations in which a senior ICE official 18 presented recommendations to another senior ICE official concerning the acquisition of additional 19 resources for the ICE FOIA Division. Id. ¶ 5. The presentations include three options for seeking 20 additional resources and recommend one. Id. Because the documents do not include ICE's final 21 decision about whether and how to seek additional resources, defendants assert that public release
22 of the deliberations in these draft presentations would have an "immediate chilling effect on ICE's 23 future deliberations" and on its decision-making process. Id. Exhibit BB is a document that
24 contains internal comments, proposed responses, and discussion bullets for a December 18, 2019
25 meeting between ICE and USCIS. Id. ¶ 6. Defendants state this document also reflects non-final 26 agency deliberations and its public release would have an "immediate chilling effect on the 27 willingness of ICE officials to engage in free and frank discussions and could cause confusion for 28 the public." Id. I did not use those portions of the exhibits in my analysis of the motions and

1 agree with defendants that they may be sealed as requested. I GRANT defendants' motion to seal
2 portions of exhibits V, X and BB.

3 CONCLUSION

4 For the reasons set forth above, summary judgment is GRANTED in favor of plaintiffs and 5 against defendants with respect to plaintiffs' pattern or practice claims. I ORDER the following:

6 Declaratory Relief:

7 Defendants have violated the FOIA by failing to make timely determinations on plaintiffs' A-
8 File FOIA requests within the mandated statutory time frames. Defendants have engaged in a 9 pattern or practice of violating FOIA's statutory deadlines when responding to requests for A-10 Files.

11 Injunctive Relief:

- 12 a. Adhere to FOIA Timing Requirements: Defendants are permanently enjoined from further 13 failing to adhere to the statutory deadlines for adjudicating A-File FOIA requests, as set 14 forth in 5 U.S.C. §§ 552(a)(6)(A) and (B);
- 15 b. Eliminate the Backlogs: Within sixty (60) days of this order, defendants shall make 16 determinations on all A-File FOIA requests in USCIS's and ICE's backlogs;
- 17 c. Quarterly Compliance Reports: Until further order, defendants shall provide this court and 18 class counsel with quarterly reports containing information regarding the number and 19 percentage of A-File FOIA requests that were filed and timely completed as well as the 20 number and percentage of cases that remain pending beyond the twenty or thirty-day
21 statutory periods, respectively 5 U.S.C. §§ 552(a)(6)(A) and (B). The first compliance
22 report is due within ninety (90) days of this order.

23 Motion to Seal

24 Defendants' request to seal portions of exhibits M, Q, R, S, W, V, X, BB, FF, and GG is 25 GRANTED.

1 A Status Conference is set for April 6, 2021 at 2:00 p.m. The parties shall file a joint
2 status report by March 30, 2021.

3 IT IS SO ORDERED.

4 Dated: December 17, 2020

William H. Orrick
United States District Judge

United States District Court
Northern District of California

5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28